Dropship for eBay with Shipwire/eBay Partnership

December 21st, 2009 by Skip McGrath

Shipwire, an independent drop ship warehouse and eBay announced a new partnership agreement today whereby eBay merchants will find it even easier to sell their goods on eBay and fulfill with Shipwire, thanks to a free eBay shipping tool that connects their eBay and Shipwire accounts. The announcement underscores Shipwire's commitment to helping merchants outsource the hassle of shipping and storage, leaving them free to focus on growing sales.

Any eBay seller can now become a dropshipper.

The way Shipwire works is that you purchase your goods in bulk –thereby getting a better price. Then you ship your goods to one of Shipwire's warehouses located in several locations around the US. When you get an order, you simply use the free eBay tool to notify Shipwire of your buyers address and they ship it out for you. The cost is minimal and in some cases can actually save you money.

Free Trial – Dropship your first 6 eBay items

Shipwire offers a great free trial. Send them 6 products and they will drop ship those for free to allow you to try the service.

Drop ship international eBay orders too

Shipwire has warehouses in Chicago, Los Angeles, Nevada, Toronto, Vancouver BC and the UK so you can save a ton of money on your international sales and undercut your competition on shipping fees. Shipwire service starts at $29.95 month for small sellers and up to $189.95 per month for really large sellers.
